

Research Proposal

Once you finalise the topic for your research, the next step is to develop the research proposal. You have to come up with a proposal that provides absolute clarity to your committee about the final dissertation that you will present. As a framework of the research project, the proposal must talk about the following:

- > Literature resources that you will refer to
- > Data collection methods and sample size
- > Research methods, theories used, assumptions and validity issues
- > Data analysis methods and tools you will use
- > Probable results and conclusions

Though the actual length of the proposal will depend on the guidelines of your committee, it must not be more than 25-30 pages.

When you consult our team for selecting the most suitable topic or writing the proposal, we will discuss your field of interest and suggest the topic accordingly. Further, we will assign a writer who will draft the proposal according to the guidelines specified. You may get in touch with our team at phdhelp@fivevidya.com
