

Nano Particles

Nano particles are particles ranging in size from 1 to 100 nanometers with unique physical, chemical, and biological properties that differ significantly from their bulk counterparts. Their properties make them valuable in various fields such as medicine, electronics and environmental sciences. The increasing interest in nanoparticles stems from their versatility in terms of tunability in size, shape and functionality.